

Overcoming Powerlessness

© Ellaenah

Beloved Children of Light! Archangel Azrael greets you.

So often does your world blame the Creator for that which goes wrong; whether they be natural calamities, whether they be personal trauma, it's all placed upon the Creator's door, as though there was this one Creator spending all His time, thinking of evil ways to bring you grief and sorrow.

Instead of wasting even one moment in such futile activity, if you would instantly begin the first step of transmutation and transformation, on a personal level, you would find that there would be no anger that you would have to deal with, no symptoms of your anger that you would have to encounter, and there would be the awareness of power that you are not aware of, for your anger at your Creator comes from your powerlessness because you believe that the event or the situation is bigger than you; so big, in fact, that it overwhelms you. This sense of acute powerlessness needs expression, and in your world, powerlessness is expressed through rage and violence.

Look around your world. Who are those that perpetrate acts of violence? They are not hateful. They are victims of acute powerlessness. Instead of banging upon the Creator's door and shouting for Him to set things straight, why not access your own power, and emit that power, radiate it, so that it reaches those who are powerless, bringing them to a realization of their own power.

Beloved Children of the Light, violence in your world will not end till as long as there is even one person in your world who experiences powerlessness. The greater is the intensity of this experience of powerlessness, the stronger is the intensity of its rage, its outburst. Sometimes, its outburst cannot be seen; it is not an obvious outburst. But a powerless person, or one who experiences his powerlessness (for truly there is no power "less" person, but one who considers he is powerless) may have an outburst in a manner you may not recognize as an outburst. It may be falling and injuring himself very, very severely. It may be causing, what may appear to all as, an accident to another. This is not to say that it will be a deliberate act, but it will certainly be an accident brought about as an unconscious outburst against his own powerlessness.

2011 brings you the Rainbow Bridge for all on Earth, and those who are less powerless than others, for no one is completely in their power, have to shoulder the responsibility of empowering those who are more powerless than they are. The Rainbow Bridge cannot easily be crossed in the absence of power, for every step that you take upon the Rainbow Bridge will involve you liberating yourself from one hindrance. Each hindrance, each hurdle, that you liberate yourself from, gives you the power to take another step on that Rainbow Bridge.

And what are these hurdles, beloveds? You may answer that they are my relationships or my health or my work or lack of money or having no home or no career or no job. But we tell you, beloveds, these are not your hurdles at all. Do not try to overcome these. Do not waste your time attempting to make these right. These are only symptomatic. They are there because you are powerless. So do not address the symptoms; address the true hurdles that are within you: your limiting beliefs about yourself, about others and about the world at large. Address these beliefs immediately.

Look around you, each day, as you function. Be aware, all around you, how are they being reflected to you? And be aware how you are manifesting them in your thought, word and deed. If there is someone who comes to you, in your environment, with a severely negative limiting belief, do not judge that person, but at once recognize that here is a reflection that you have to see. There are certain beliefs that you intellectually do not know you possess, but they do exist at a very, very deep level of your consciousness. And if they repeatedly come to you, in your environment, through your reflections, they most certainly are your own beliefs.

So one hindrance is belief. The second hindrance is emotion. We cannot even expect you to be detached from your emotions, but we certainly do urge you to refine them. Emotions of frustration, dissatisfaction, discontent, resentment, anger, hatred, all separate you from others. That you know! What you may not know is that all these emotions arise from your powerlessness. If you were filled with power then another's actions, words would not matter to you. You would be able to centre yourself, in your own core pillar of Creatorhood. Your emotional reactions bring to you the fact that you are indeed powerless. How strong the emotional reaction is, will tell you how powerless you truly are. So, your second hurdle are your own emotions.

And then we come to the third hurdle, the most difficult hurdle that you will face, and that is your human conditioning of separation. Since that moment that you gave your first cry into the world, you have experienced yourself as separate from the other. Even your own mother whose breast you fed at, and found the greatest sense of oneness with, even with her there was separation. She was your mother; she was not you.

Unity brings power, but it is only through power that unity is attained. So how will you get out of this conundrum? To be united and one with all you must have power, but to have power, you must be completely united. And this unity can start with unity with yourself. Be united with yourself. Lack of self-love, lack of self-worth, lack of self-honour all indicate lack of inner unity. When you blame, either yourself or another, it is an act of powerlessness. When you resent yourself or another, it is out of powerlessness. When you expect from others, or expect from self, standards that you have set out of your own ignorance of true Creatorhood, that is also a revelation of powerlessness. If you can express all of these, within yourself, you will reach an inner unity that will add and enhance your power and you will be an instrument to empower others as well.

You do not need physical might, you do not need physical courage and strength, you do not need money and wealth. None of these bring power. What brings power is one belief, the experience of that one belief, and that belief is that you are the Creator of your universe. If you can experience yourself as that Creator, every living, waking moment, you will naturally not react.

We are not telling you anything new; nothing that you do not know. But we must keep repeating this because you are not living this completely. Is every day of your life ending, before you go into sleep state, with an awareness of your power? If it is not, then this message of Light has come for you. Do you spend even a short time in your day, reacting to another's words, expecting another to be a certain way so that you are more comfortable? Then this message of Light has come for you. Are you blaming yourself for things done, not releasing yourself from the past, living in the future, but ignoring the present? Then this message of Light has come for you. Do you shed tears of pain, do you speak words of anger, do thoughts that disempower you cross your mind? Then this message of Light has come for you.

There is now truly no more time to waste. The Rainbow Bridge must be crossed by all. We are truly desirous that every single tiniest aspect of humanity cross this Rainbow Bridge by the end of 2011, and that is why, time and time again, we will return to remind you of your power, to remind you that your greatest hurdle that stands today is your powerlessness. We are here to work with each one, but we cannot give you power. That power you generate for yourself.

Beloved Children of the Light, keep all other tasks at bay and spend the next few months only in seeking self-empowerment. Do not attempt to empower others at present, for you have to, first, be full of power yourself. So use the next few months to empower self fully, with only one experience daily: you are the Creator of your universe.

Greetings from the Angelic Realm, beloved Children of the Light!
