

Role of The Animals In The Evolution of The Human Soul

Greetings from Light

We are urging you, by referring to ourselves as Light, not to get caught in names and labels. Names keep you restricted and small. All names restrict. We are Light. We (all) are Light, so could we just refer to ourselves as that which we are?

Telepathic communication. No, that is not what we are going to teach you for the truth is you do not need to be taught that at all. That is the natural way that Light communicates. As long as you communicate with each other as one 'person' to another, as one 'name' to another, you will stop yourself from telepathic communication. As soon as you communicate with each other, as 'light' communicating with 'light', telepathic communication will be, not the only most natural form of communication, but the only one. You have been telepathically communicating with different aspects of nature without conscious effort, and certainly without conscious realization. Haven't you sat by the seashore, and suddenly for some unknown reason, felt a deep sense of calm overcoming you? Or sat under a tree, and again for an unknown reason, suddenly realized a solution to a problem that you had been battling with? That is telepathic communication, where the ocean waves picked up your restlessness, your agitation, and knew that what you truly desired was a sense of peace and calm, and communicated that energy to you. That beautiful tree communicated with your mind space and saw it grappling with a problem, and from the largeness of its light suggested a solution. Did you need to be taught that?

You need to be taught how to speak, which you are when you are very young. But you do not need to be taught how to communicate telepathically, for you are light, and light communicates naturally through telepathic communication. But because you are also human, you have to be taught to speak to another human who is not truly, in essence, a human at all. You teach your children erroneous communication, and then wonder why you have communication problems in your world. For in essence 90% of all your problems in this world can come down to poor communication. Is that not true? You do not communicate what you feel, so when it is expressed, it is expressed as anger, as resentment, as aggression. You do not communicate the love that you feel, so when it is expressed, it is expressed as lust, jealousy, possessiveness and clinginess. But the truth is, love cannot be expressed in words. And you are trying to do that. Love is the language of light, and if one 'human being' is attempting to communicate that to another 'human being'... We think you know where we are going. Ah, but if Light desires to communicate that to Light, it be the easiest, most effortless, most joyous communication possible. Because you do not at every moment in time, consider yourself as light, you do not consider another as Light, even though you know, with every fibre of your intellect and beyond, that you ARE Light. So what stops you from considering, knowing, being, Light all the time?

Telepathic communication is the way for the human race to go now. The human race has to move into the belief that it is Light, and nothing else save Light. Nothing else save Light. Love is the language of Light, power is the action of Light, and wisdom is Light itself. You have communicated telepathically over and over again. Now you must do so in conscious awareness, and no, not by any exercise that we will give you, for that is going to be futile at present. We are, instead, going to talk to you about certain beings who are present in your world, who have not been recognized but who are your teachers, messengers, of telepathic communication. They are your animals. They are your animals.

You all know that your world is a world of illusion, even though your illusion seems very real to you, as of course, it must. This is part of the divine plan. It is part of the divine plan for there to be illusion. It is part of the divine plan for there to be duality. We are, of course, referring to the divine plan only in the context of Earth. In the context of Earth, the divine plan is only one. EVOLUTION of the human soul. All souls who have separated from Source and have been on their journeys, come to a certain point in their journeys where they must pass through forgetfulness. That phase of the soul's journey is played out on Earth. The souls will move out of this phase of forgetfulness when there is a full and complete knowingness even while they live in illusion, that they are Light. Every soul, even those whom you have called the Ashtaar Command, must go through this stage of forgetfulness, for in forgetting who you are, and then remembering and knowing who you are is a leap in evolution. All of Earth is configured, constructed, only to ensure the evolution of the human Soul. The plan is to start from forgetfulness but to proceed towards the full knowingness, not intellectual... the full knowingness, breathing, expression as Light.

Your animal kingdom is part of that plan. They are here to aid the human soul into evolution, and they play many different roles. Some surrender their physicality of their beingness as a food source for the human world. That is the role in the plan. But when you are unaware that this is their role, the animals are slaughtered with indignity, in greed. Your own ancestors, forefathers, who you now call ancient cultures, knew of this connection, and so every animal that was killed, as food source, was first revered, recognized as the God Source. Telepathically the hunter and hunted communicated the intent and purpose, and there was a joy in the animal to fulfill the purpose for which it had been born, and there was a gratitude in the hunter for the plan that looked after his every need. Where is that hunter today? Today hunting has become a cruel sport where an animal is killed, not as food source, but for game, for pleasure, for its skin, its bones. And the animal that dies in this manner dies in fear. What you consume is fear. What your ancient cultures consumed was love and joy. That is why they were healthy. That is why they lived for more years than you believe you will. That is why they left their human body, not because it was diseased and old, but because they knew that their time in the human body was over, and they chose to leave as Light. That is death. A joyous leaving of the body, for no more does Light need to be encased. A joyous completion of a mission, a stage.

With all the harshness and all the cruelty, your animals continue to play their part. Their DNA is unique. Their DNA is not configured to blame. Their DNA is not configured to judge. Their DNA is configured to give unconditional support to the human world on its plan, on its growth to evolution. And so you may hit that dog on the street on one day but the next day you offer it food and it has already forgotten that you were the same person who hit it. Let us talk about three animals that are extremely important to your human world, far more than all the other animals. That is not say that other animals are not important but these three are vital. And they are the dog, cat and horse. These three are not only here to be your teachers. Their energies, without your being aware of it, help in a most tangible manner towards evolution.

Let us start with that animal that helps you in your physical reality, for the divine plan is aware that illusion and physicality is part of your journey. That part of the journey must also be aided and helped and the animal that is born for this purpose is the dog. The energy of the dog attracts to it physicality; physicality of thought and emotion as well. It helps the human world to transcend its physicality. How does it do this? A dog has the ability to make you either love it, or dislike it. To the dog it does not matter what your reaction is. Both are human reactions, and the presence of the dog helps your transcend human emotion. When a dog enters your home, as a pet, understand that your soul has moved into a state when it is strongly desiring physicality; physicality of thought, belief and emotion. The dog comes to heal; for it knows that it is only in healing that you can transcend. You may never pick up that dog to cuddle it, and it will still continue to heal. It will heal not only the persons in the home; it heals the home itself, the physical space, removing the memories of illness and pain from the space. And then continues to heal all those who walk into that home. Whenever you are feeling physically, emotionally or mentally sick, just visit a friend who has a dog and see how quickly you return feeling better.

There are those who resist the transcendence of physicality, and their resistance shows up as fear. Those who fear dogs are those who strongly resist transcending their physicality.

Now let us turn to the cat that is completely different from the dog. That is why your myths about dogs and cats not getting along. There is no such thing, but of course your beliefs will create for you those experiences. You will understand why when we explain. The dog is physicality, matter, and the cat is spirit. Because the cat is spirit, its energies prod you, enable you, and support you, into expanding your vibratory frequency. The cat has this purpose, and so it does not need to feel what you are feeling, and thus often the cat is not liked because the cat seems totally aloof. But isn't Light detached from physicality? Now do you understand why certain cults who use the energy of spirit in a not completely wholesome manner, will use the energies of the cat? Cat is spirit and it shall support spiritual growth even if you do not recognize it as such. So let us say there is a person who might have a cat and who practices that which you have called 'black magic'... the cat will support the energies fully. Why? Not to aid evil, but to enhance for this person the power of the abuse of spirit, so that there is a dawning within that person that Light is the fullness of divine power, that Light is divine mind, and can make a transformation and thus move into a higher frequency. Yes, beloved, Light sometimes works in ways you do not recognize as sacred.

And now we come to the horse. Have you seen a horse in a field? It stands still, only munching on that sweet grass, in complete harmony with nature. The energies of the horse bring about an alignment between the human energies and the rest of nature and because of this the energy of the horse is vital in grounding you, and is most helpful in healing you. It is time your human world begins to treat those who are emotionally, physically and mentally not healthy, by using the energies of these beautiful animals. Autistic children should be made to ride. The horse, the dog and the cat know exactly what you need, know exactly what you think and know exactly what you feel, because you and the animal are telepathically communicating with each other. That is how they know.

There is another unique pattern to their DNA. Of all animals, but stronger in these three. The DNA is configured to align itself with the thought and feeling energy of the human being. So if the animal is with her, it will instantly align its energies to her and will instantly know what she is thinking and feeling, and will behave accordingly. Then if in five minutes he should enter the room, the DNA will configure instantly to understand his thoughts, beliefs and feelings. Sometimes you might have been surprised that the same dog who always licked you and was happy to see you, on a certain day begins to snap and growl. Instead of blaming the animal, understand that the dog's DNA has configured to pick up your latent and unexpressed anger, resentment, disappointment, unhappiness, and the dog does not wish you to remain in this place and so reflects it to you. Change your space and the dog will come and lick you again. Let us now talk of the licking. The dog is primarily focused upon your physicality and so as it licks you it takes away the toxins on the surface of your skin.

Now that you are aware of this, why not begin your process of telepathic communication, with animals? Any and every animal.

There is one thing that the animal kingdom teaches you, and that is forgiveness. The entire animal kingdom is wired to love in the present moment. Past and future for them as extremely transient, unimportant. Their awareness of past and future is minimal; only what is required to live in physical form.

Sitter: What about the elephant?

The elephant... because it has been brought up we will answer this. The elephant symbolizes the divinity of power and the gentleness that comes with strength. Its energies exude power to the human world, for as the human soul proceeds on its evolution, it needs to be embraced by divine power for sometimes the journey can get rough. The elephant offers divine power emanations. But there is one thing the elephant teaches. It teaches gratitude and it teaches loyalty.

Beloveds, if you communicated with the animal world, you would not need to seek our help at all. The animal world is the Light of the Universe in manifested form for you. We could go on and on with so many animals but that is not relevant. Just know one thing; the animal kingdom is there to aid, support, and accelerate the evolution of the human soul. You have given high praise to being of light that you have called the Ashtaar, the Pleiadian, The Arcturians, and the White Brotherhood. Oh beloveds, let us tell you that you must give even higher reverence to animals for they live amongst you, they sacrifice themselves for you. It has often been found that an animal dies so that its master may live in health.

Love your animals, nurture them , but most importantly revere them. They are the gods you are seeking and they are here to help you remember that you are the gods that walk the Earth. Your first step in telepathic communication is to give your pet instructions not through the spoken word but with telepathy. If you wish to proceed with telepathic communication, start with your animals. If you have a child who is unhappy, conflicted, upset, angry, aggressive, confused, let them be with animals. There is no doctor who can heal quicker and better than animals.

Live in Light. BE Light. Know that you ARE Light.
